Lighthouses

Tim

We now have a new CD for the car, where Rend Collective have released some children's songs. It includes a new version of My Lighthouse that James has named La La house. Whilst it was playing this morning I made a link that I hadn't quite before. Besides lighthouses having the light that guides us, they must also have very strong foundations so that they don't crumble in amongst the storms they face. If the lighthouse only had weak foundations it would be no good to the passing ships. In the same way for us, God is that lighthouse with immovable foundations, that guides us. However, unlike a lighthouse that only shines during the night and in bad weather, God shines for us all the time, in the good and the bad if only we remember to look for Him.

This month is where we remember the sacrifice of the soldiers in a tradition that started 100 years ago. The soldiers in WW1 were given a Bible to take with them into battle, to help remind them of the hope, the light that God provides, the firm foundation of His word in amongst the 'storm' of battle.

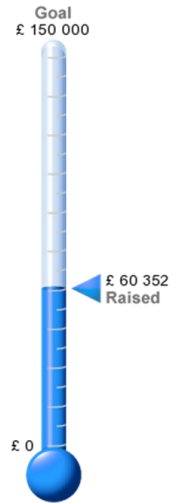

In the battles that we're going through we need to remember that we've got this firm unmovable lighthouse to head towards. Unlike the Danish lighthouse that this week is being moved 70 metres to protect it from erosion, God doesn't change His promises to us.

We must also remember that all of us share one lighthouse, one God. Now we might approach it from different angles, and see it slightly differently, but it is the same lighthouse. We need to remain united and work individually and collectively to get closer to the lighthouse, growing together as a result.

There are many things that we need to remember and it is only by revisiting and reminding ourselves of them that they sink in and become habits that we live by.
